BY bloudy Battels, Conquest, and by Fate,
Faire Englands Crown and Kingdom I surpris'd:
I topsie-turuy turn'd the English State,
And Lawes and Customes new and strange deuise'd.
And where I vanquisht, there I tyranniz'd,
In stead of peoples loue inforcing feare:
Extorring Tolls I dayly exercis'd,
And Tributes, greater then the Land could beare,
Besides, (the Normans fame the more to reare)
The English I forbade the English tongue,
French Schooles of Grammer I ordayned here,
And'gainst this Nation added wrong to wrong.
At last my Crown, Sword, Scepter, Conquest braue
I left, I lost, scarce found an earthly Graue.

WHat my triumphant Father was, I held,
I pill'd and poll'd this Kingdom more then he,
Great Tributes from my people I compeld :
No place in Church or Common-welth was free,
But alwayes those that would giue most to me
Obtain'd their purpose being wrong or right.
The Clergy I enforced to agree
To sell Church-plate and Chalicees out-right,
Vntill at last (by the Almightyes might)
My Kingly power and force was forcelesse made,
My glorious pompe that seem'd t'eclips mens sight,
Did vanish by a glance, by chance, and fade :
For hunting in New-forest (voyd of feare)
A Subiect slew me shooting at a Deere.

BY wrested Titles and vsurping claime,
Through storms & tempests of tumultuous wars
The Crowne (my fairest marke and foulest ayne)
I won and wore, beleaguerd round with iars.
The English, Scots, and Normans all prepares,
Their powers exposing to oppose my powers,
Whilst this Land laden and or'ewhelm'd with cares
Endures, whilst war, woe, want and death deuoures.
But as years, months, weeks, daies decline by howers,
Howers into minutes, minutes into nought:
My painfull pompe decayd like fading flowers,
And vnto nought was my Ambition brought.
Thus is the state of transitory things,
There's nothing can be permanent with Kings.

Rebellious Wales I finally did tame,

Henry 7

I was the man (by Gods high grace assign'd)
I That for this restless Kingdome purchas'd rest:
I Yorke and Lancaster in one combin'd.
That sundred had each other long oppress,
My strength and policy th' Almighty blest.
With good successe from first vnto the last:
And high Iehonab turned to the best
A world of perills with my youth o're past.
The white and red Rose I conioyned fast,
In sacred Marriages coniugall band:
I Traytors tam'd, and treason stood agast
At me; strong guarded by my Makers hand.
In glory and magnificence I raign'd,
And fame, loue and a tombe was all I gaind.

TO both the Royall Houses I was Heyre;
I made but one of long contending twaine:
This Realme diuided drooping in despaire,
I did rebinde in my auspicious Raigne,
I banisht Romish Vsurpation vaine.
In France I Bullen, Turwin, Turney wan:
The Stile of Faiths Defender I did gaine.
Sixe wiues I had, three An's, two Kates, one Iane.
In my expences Royall, beyond measure,
Striuing in Noble Actions to exceede;
Accounting Honour as my greatest Treasure:
Yet various fancies did my frailty feede,
I made and marr'd, I did, and I vndid,
Till all my Greatnesse in a Graue was hid.

I Seem'd in wisdom aged in my youth,
A Princely patterne; I reform'd the time:
With zeale and courage I maintain'd Gods truth,
And Christian faith gainst Antichristian crime.
My Father did begin; I, in my prime,
Both Baal and Beliall from this Kingdome droue,
With concords true harmonious heauenly chime
I caus'd be said and sung Gods truth and loue.
From vertue vnto vertue still I stroue,
I liu'd beloued both of God and men:
My soule vnto her Maker soar'd aboue,
My earthly part returnd to earth agen.
Thus Death, my faire proceedings did preuent,
And Peeres and People did my losse lament.

Queene Mary.

NO sooner I possess the Royall Throne,
But true Religion straight was dispossest:
Bad Counsell caus'd Rome, Spaine and I, as one,
To persecute, to martyr, and molest
All that the vntain'd truth of God profest:
All such as dar'd oppugne the pow'rfull Pope,
With grienous tortures were oppress and prest,
With Axes, Fire, and Faggot, and the Rope.
Scarce any Land beneath the heau'nly Cope,
Afflicted was as I caus'd this to be:
And when my Fortunes were in highest hope,
Death at the five yeares end arrested me.
No Bale would serue, I could command no aid,
But I in prison in my graue was laid.

Queene Elizabeth,

THe griefes, the feares, the terrors and the toiles,
The sleights, tricks, snares that for my life were Popes, prisons, poysons, pistols, bloody broyles, (laid
All these incompast me (poore harmelesse Mayd)
But I still trusting in my Makers aide,
Was still defended by his power diuine:
My glory and my greatnesse was displaid
As farre as Sunne and Moone did euer shine.
Gods mingled Seruice I did re-refine
From Romish rubbish, and from humane drosse.
I yearely made the pride of Spaine decline:
France and all Belgia I sau'd from losse,
I was Arts patterne, t' Armes I was a Patron;
I liu'd and dyed a Queene, a Maid, a Matron.

VV Here all the flattery of the world in me,
(Great King of Hearts & Arts, great Britaines
Yet all that flattery could not flatter thee: (King)
Or adde to thy renowne the smallest thing.
My Muse (with truth and freedome) dares to sing,
Thou art a Monarch lou'd of God and Men.
Two famous Kingdomes thou to one didst bring,
And gau'st lost Britaines name her name agen.
Thou cause'st Doctors with their learned pen,
The sacred Bible newly to translate,
Thy wisdom found the damned powder'd Den,
That hell had hatcht to ouerthrow thy state.
And all the world thy Motto must allow,
The peace makers are blest; and so art thou.
